NEED THE CORRECT ADDRESS OF ALL CAR OWNERS

Richmond, Va.- C. H. Lamb, Commissioner of the Division of Motor Vehicles, today made his annual appeal to Virginia motor vehicle licensees that if they have changed their addresses since registering their vehicles in 1954, that they immediately furnish the Division the following information:

New Address, title number, make and identification number and name as shown on the old registration card.

Change of address blanks may be secured from the Division's license agents, 8 branch offices and at DMV headquarters, 2220 West Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

"More than 1,500,000 registration cards for 1955 are now in the process of being addressed," said Mr. Lamb, who pointed out that "if the licensee's address is the same as when he registered his vehicle in 1954, it is a matter of seconds to prepare his card. On the other hand, failure to notify the Division of a change in address in ample time before the registration begins, on March 15, often involves a delay of from 8 to 48 hours to make the necessary changes. This is bound to work a hardship on the licensee and cause him considerable inconvenience."

Party Vegetables

For vegetables in a party mood cut up a little pimiento and mix with them. This is particularly good with a green vegetable such as snap beans.

Another way to pep up vegetables is to serve them with mushroom sauce. Or combine two vegetables such as peas and corn, for flavor and color.

SENATOR BYRD OPPOSES FEDERAL ROAD PROGRAM

Senator Harry F. Byrd (D.,Va.) has issued the following statement relative to the proposed Federal road building plan:

"I shall discuss the proposed new road plan at length in the Senate when the President submits it to Congress January 27. In this statement I am commenting briefly on the recommendations to the President by the National Advisory Committee for a National Highway program.

The Committee's recommendations fall generally in two parts: (1) continuation of the regular federal aid to highways at the rate of $623 million a year, and (2) expenditure during the next ten years of an additional $25 billion for the so-called Interstate Highway system. Federal expenditures on the two programs in 10 years would total $31 billion.

The Committee estimates the $25 billion would construct 40,000 road miles designated by the Federal government as Interstate Highway. This would be little more than 1 per cent of all public road mileage. The average would be about 800 miles per state. For this the committee recommends borrowing $20 billion at 2% interest and collection of $5 billion in fees from filling stations, motels, etc. operating on the rights of way.

If the 30-year taxable bonds recommended by the Committee can be sold at 3 per cent interest, and if they are paid off on schedule—the last maturing in 1987, the interest would cost more than $11.5 billion. At this rate every dollar borrowed would cost taxpayers $1.55.

Based on all recent federal experience, I submit it is a violent assumption to predict these bonds will be paid off at maturity. In effect, we have not paid off a single dollar of federal debt in 25 years. Continuing increase in the federal debt is in prospect for an indefinite period.

It may be expected that even before the 40,000 miles are constructed, the program will be expanded in mileage, scope and amount. It is certain that the system will be thousands of miles greater than contemplated in the Committee report.

As we grow, population shifts, and the impact on specific roads changes, and therefore our road needs shift and change. There is no such thing as a permanent road because no one can predict years in advance what specific roads will carry the most traffic.

The Committee's letter transmitting the report to the President implies that revenue from taxes on gasoline and lubricating oils will liquidate the program debt.

Actually the Committee recommends that the Federal Government assume virtually the complete obligation for the so-called Interstate Highway system (abolishing the 60-40 Federal-State matching requirement in this program) and that it be financed by methods which are unique so far as I know, and thoroughly unsound.

The Committee recommended to the President that the program be financed through a federal corporation which, without either assets or income, would borrow $20 billion from the public. The Treasury, under a contract with the corporation, would guarantee the corporation's bonds, but tht debt would not be included in the record of obligations guaranteed by the United States. Annual appropriations to meet principal and interest payments would be requested, but the request could not be refused or reduced by subsequent Congresses, for 30 years, if the faith and credit of the government are to be honored. If financial difficulty should develop at any time the corporation with no further authorization could make mandatory calls upon the Treasury for amounts up to $5 billion outstanding at any one time.

Such procedures violate financing principles, defy budgetary control, and evade federal debt law.

If the Federal government can properly borrow money for roads in this fashion, without regarding it as debt, and spend it without budgetary control, it may be expected that similar proposals will be made for financing endless outlays which may be desirable for education, hospitals, public health, etc. In fact, I am informed that such a plan is now under consideration for school construction.

This would mean operating the government on two sets of books: one set for activities financed by borrowing outside the debt and expenditures outside budgetary control, and the other set for activities financed by borrowing on the record and expenditures under budget control.

Count it as you will, as we spend more than our income we add to our debt. The least the government can do, in fairness to taxpayers, is to keep books and accounts in a manner reflecting the true state of our fiscal affairs.

When the government contracts a bonafde debt, but arbitrarily removes it from classification as public indebtedness, it creates fiscal confusion and disorder, and destroys confidence in government credit.

You can not avoid financial responsibility by sugerdemain, and you can not evade debt by definition. The obligations of the Federal Government and all its citizens will still remain.

(Senator Byrd added that shortly he will propose a substitute plan for increased road building).

A Short Message

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

A Pretty "Snappy" Menu

Cuff Taylor had a near riot in his hen yard last week. Seems the hens were scratching around the cold ground when they found a piece of rubber band frozen in the ice.

"One hen pecked at it," says Cuff, "and it snapped right back. She backed off clucking while another hen tried it, and another. And the 'worm' kept right on snapping back. They all got their feathers ruffled. You never heard such a ruckus!"

"I finally had to break up the ice with an ax before those hens would get back to business and start laying eggs again."

From where I sit, some people raise a pretty big fuss over nothing, too. Take the fellow who would deny me a temperate glass of beer with my game of checkers. Maybe he'd rather have coffee! Well, that's all right. He has a right to his own preference. But so do I. And there's no point in his "snapping" at me just because his choice isn't the same as mine.
